Founder and President of Widow Connection, a new not for profit ministry.

I became a believer through reading I John and observing the godly life of my husband, Bob. This was the most impactful decision of my life. The second most impactful was choosing to marry Bob Neff. As a 19-year-old bride we headed to Chicago as he knew God was leading him to serve Him through Moody Broadcasting.

While I completed my education and had a 26 year career working in public high schools, my career was more than that. As a believer, I knew I was salt and light in a place where the Christian light was fading. I am thankful that God gave me a love for teens and I was able to work with them.

Concurrently, my husband and I had two children and adopted two as well. Parenting was one of the greatest challenges to me personally and spiritually. We now have 3 adopted African American grandchildren.

While each person is greatly impacted by their spouse, I have been BIG TIME! My husband had a large career at Moody Broadcasting and a passion for broadcasting all over the world. I was able to travel to over 40 countries and see him in action. I believed in what he did.

While parenting was one of the largest challenges in my life, another has been becoming a widow and living life without Bob.

I wish to somehow find a niche in which I can serve God's kingdom on earth, whatever that might be.
